Frequently Asked Questions

What do you look for in prospective leaders? We look for college first years, sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduates with a strong desire to work with young people, extensive leadership experience, excellent judgment, superb problem solving skills, success working in team settings and leading with others, patience, humor and the determination and stamina to succeed in a challenging environment. The Overland community is supportive, wholesome and inclusive, and we seek individuals from a wide range of backgrounds, interests and perspectives.

Who are Overland's students? Our students are 9 to 18 years old and come from across the country and around the world. Every summer about half of our students are back for a second, third, fourth or fifth summer. We are committed to broadening access to all of our trips through our scholarship and financial aid programs. In 2017, Overland gave over $180,000 in financial aid.

When can I expect to hear from Overland? We will notify applicants of their status within 2-3 weeks of applying. Finalists are invited to interviews, and offers for specific trips follow. We ask a select group of strong candidates to be in our reserve pool for positions that may become available in the spring. Approximately 20 leaders are hired from the reserve pool each year.

How many applications do you receive? We typically receive over 1,000 applications and hire about 120 new leaders; roughly half of our staff each year is made up of returning leaders.

Where do college first-years lead? We hire students finishing their first year of college to join our New England support staff. Members of Support Staff assist with trips and in the office, organize gear and shuttle groups in 15-passenger vans, sometimes towing a utility trailer. Members of Support Staff typically lead one or more weeks of a New England-based introductory trip.

Where do college sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduates lead? First-year leaders for Overland who are sophomores or older lead trips across the U.S. and abroad.

How are trip placement decisions made? We consider an applicant's written application, previous leadership experience, references and interviews. We look for a match between the new leader, their prospective co-leader and a trip. Leaders of language trips must be fluent in French or Spanish and have studied abroad.

What is an Overland summer like? There are three parts to an Overland summer: training, leading and closing.

- The Overland summer begins in mid-June with Leader Training in Williamstown, Massachusetts. The entire staff camps and shares all meals during ten days of seminars, hands-on workshops and a multi-day hiking or biking trip. Leader Training is a time to sharpen leadership skills, master the details of trip logistics and build effective working relationships with co-leaders and the full-time staff.
- Overland leaders co-lead a trip or a series of trips with one or two other leaders. For six weeks, leaders are responsible for maintaining the health and well-being of their students, managing day-to-day logistics, transporting students in a 15-passenger van (on some trips towing a utility trailer), working within a budget, planning and organizing meals, completing required paperwork, communicating with the Overland office and photographing the experience. Leaders manage risks in the field and serve as a positive role model to students, working to bring every member of the group together as a team.
- The Overland summer ends the first week of August with Leader Closing in Williamstown, during which leaders re-connect with the rest of our staff, debrief their leading experience and follow up with their students via written communications.

What trips do you offer? We offer trips in over 50 locations across the U.S. and abroad, including Canada, Europe, Central and South America, Iceland and Tanzania. Our trips include hiking, biking, service, language and writing; the trips range from one to six weeks in length, and they vary in difficulty from introductory experiences for our younger students to challenge trips for our older students.

What reimbursements do you offer for certifications and travel? We reimburse for CPR/AED (up to $50) and Wilderness First Aid (up to $200). While you do not need any certifications to apply, if hired you'll need to arrive at leader training with CPR/AED and Wilderness First Aid (we offer a lifesaving course during our leader training). Overland partially reimburses for travel to and from Williamstown at the start and end of the summer.

Please Note: Leaders are responsible for loss or damage to their personal gear and bicycles. Overland provides workers' compensation and general liability protection but does not provide health insurance for seasonal staff.
